Cultural Competence in Process and Practice: Building Bridges Juliet C. Rothman

Now more than ever, the populations social workers must be trained to work with represent the broadest spectrum of humanity — in ethnicity,culture, race, religion, worldview, gender, sexual orientation, ability, and in life experiences.

This text will prepare students to work with any population they will encounter in their professional career. It's divided into 3 parts; Unit 1 covers social work processes, Unit 2 contains student case examples, and unit 3 contains student exercises.
